Lady Diliham's remarkable record at the Newport Horse Show last week put the famous little daughter of Diliham Prime Minister in the class with her grandaunt, Florence II, a winner in harness when 20 years old at the Atlantic City Horse Show. Lady Diliham is now in her twentieth year, and what is more, she has seldom missed a campaign since her breeder, E. D. Jordan, brought her out as a three-year-old at the Boston Horse Show in 1906. Judged by Charles P. Williams of Stonington, Conn., who has never shown great partiality for her, she was through the Newport show unbeaten, winning the model class, the American Hackney Horse Society's medal, the open class and the championship for harness horses under 15.2 hands, and finally the grand championship prize, offered by Francis P. Garvan for the best horse or pony of any size of type in the show.

The number of exhibitors who now always keep show horses without showing them more than three or four times a year is one of the peculiar features of the show. Any one could name half a dozen stables of harness horses and ponies, for example, that should have been at Newport last week yet were missing. Why? The judges were so good that the horses, courage and fairness are second to none. New stables and special rates for shipping horses on the Sound boats from New York were other inducements for exhibitors to attend the old and important show. It should have had a dozen harness horses in a class, whereas it sometimes had but two.

While the horsemen of Cork and Limerick were fighting among themselves in the south of Ireland Ulstermen stepped in and played a prominent part with their hunters at the annual Dublin Horse Show that opened on August 15. The northerners carried away seven out of fifteen first prizes for hunter stallions, but they had a narrow escape in shiping to the show. The Ulstermen had having cut the railroad at Dundalk the night after their horses went through. A lot of harness horses then on their way to the show were turned back.

The horse shows recently lost two prominent supporters through the tragic death of F. S. Peabody while following the hounds on his favorite hunt, the Hired Hand, while hunting in British Columbia. Mr. Peabody was the owner of many prize winning jumpers, including the champion Great Heat, which was killed at this week's Rochester Exposition Horse Show. Mr. and Mrs. Peabody were a horse and a hound man. They were a brother of Gen. Charles G. Treat of the United States Army and was formerly the owner of a stable of show horses, besides being at the head of one of the Pacific coast shows.

Frank F. Euren, secretary of the English Hackney Horse Society since 1899 and manager of the London International Horse Show and the London Hackney Show, died on August 15 at his home in London, England. His health had been failing for some time, and in order to supervise arrangements for the big exhibition at Olympia. He was 54 years old. He and his father, the late Henry F. Euren, were prominent in the history of the Hackney Horse Society, may be said to have founded that organization of breeders, which has had among its presidents King Edward VII. and the present Prince of Wales.

Horse fanciers of Westchester and Fairfield counties are looking forward with keen interest to the ninth annual Hackney Horse Show, which opens on Saturday, September 16. The exhibition is to be held as usual at James McClenahan's Nutbourne Farm, near Port Chester. James G. Marshall and Gen. Charles I. De Boe have been invited to judge the saddle horses, Frank A. Bonal the hunters and Robert Bank, Jr., the polo horses.

Shelter Island was the scene of a successful neighborhood horse show on August 25, exhibitors and spectators coming from the Hamptons and from Greenport and both flukes of Long Island. Some of the classes had as many as twenty-two entries. The riding competition for children proved to be the feature of the show. It was won by Miss Jane Rathbone on Freddie, Miss Edith Miller on David Jackson's April Morning, second, Miss Jean Darrow on Vestal, third, Miss and Miss Muriel Miller on Billy Boy, fourth.

The New York State Fair Horse Show at Syracuse next week will be one of the strongest of the season in its military classes. Gen. John J. Egan, Gen. James G. Macdonald, the Third Cavalry and the Remount Service are among the prospective exhibitors, while Major C. L. Scott, the five-year-old of the Remount Service, and several other officers are to ride. Enlisted men will give an exhibition drill each day at the show.

R. Lawrence Smith, chairman of the executive committee of the National Horse Show Association, has been invited to judge the saddle classes at the C. M. Frank A. Bonal of Monks, Md., will judge the hunters and jumpers; Belmont's B. Burr of Commack, L. I., the trotters and breeding stock and J. G.

Albion, Jr., and D. S. Iglehart the polo class, while Dr. Harry S. Field of Hempstead will be the judge of soundness.
New conditions for judging hunters have been framed by the American Horse Show on September 16 at Lawrence Smith Butler's "fifty acre field" near St. James, L. I. The ribbons will go to the horses that are deemed to be safe and pleasant for riding to hounds, conformation, soundness, manners and ability to gallop and jump being considered. This is a departure from the usual plan of marking hunters against them as they take the fences and walls in the show ring. The field being a large one at the Smithtown show, the qualities that make a real hunter can be tested out almost if the horses were following hounds. Started thirteen years ago in the interest of amateur horsemen and breeders, this exhibition has always been free to the public and open class for saddle horses, which was the feature of the show. The score now stands three to two in favor of Cuckoo.

The rivalry between Mrs. Sydney W. Stillwell's London champion, Radium, and Lady Penrhyn's Richmond champion, Cuckoo, goes steadily on at English horse shows. At their latest meeting, in Mendenham, where the Duke of York is president of the horse show and the Earl of Orkney was one of the judges, Cuckoo got the decision in the open class for saddle horses, which was the feature of the show. The score now stands three to two in favor of Cuckoo.

There will be an amateur horse show to-morrow on the grounds of the Hotel Wyandott at Bellport. L. I. Children's classes are to be specially featured. Among the exhibitors of saddle horses will be Miss Emily Post, Miss Grace Shuttleworth, Miss Dorothy Jackson, Mrs. H. H. Seaton, Miss Lucille Candlish, P. F. Coe and Miss Mary E. Hinton.
E. J. Lehmann, owner of the noted mares Sonya and Virginia Lloyd and an extensive breeder and exhibitor of saddle horses at Longwood Farm, Lake Villa, Ill., is going to disperse his stud and stable, according to reports from Chicago. He owned the well known show horse and sire Richelieu, King often called the handsomest saddle stallion in the world before he died. Mr. Lehmann's mares won a sixty-two ribbons at the leading shows last season. He is at the head of one of Chicago's largest department stores.

Doings in Dogdom

By FRANK F. DOLE
The Old English sheep dog is becoming more popular each year. Many fanciers have come to have a hearty respect for this hardy dog, which looks so deceptively like a bag of wool. The long hair, white and gray, which falls over its eyes and in big bundles practically to the ground, makes the dog look like an overgrown poodle. One thinks of a baby which has gotten too big and is soft and fluffy. I have seen judges who laughed at the idea that these dogs were good for anything. That, however, was when they were more rare than to-day.

Under the heavy coat is an unusually strong and muscular body. There is a firmness which is rare in other dogs. The coat is merely the way nature protects the dogs from the cold rain, sleet and snow of the North country of England, where they are used to herd the flocks. No kind of weather can faze them, and they are equally good in the sun. Furthermore, they have remarkable endurance and can cover long stretches in fewer weeks.
Now it would seem the breed is becoming much more popular. Twenty-five of this type have been entered for the show of the Fairfield Kennel Club of Noroton to-morrow. It is unprecedented to see such a large turnout at a limited show, such as is that at Noroton. Although the show is large for one limited to popular breeds, having an entry of 372 dogs, it was a great surprise that so many old English sheep dogs have been invited.

Specialty Show in October.
Furthermore, there is enough interest to warrant a specialty show of the breed in connection with the annual show of the Tuxedo Kennel Club at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., on October 7. This should bring out a great collection of these big ones, as the specialty club is working hard to make this club of the Tuxedo show a success. On that occasion the breed will be judged by Tyler Morse, a man thoroughly familiar with the breed. This also is the case at Noroton, where the judge, William P. Wolcott, was suggested by the Old English Sheep Dog Club. The entry under him illustrates the way exhibitors of a breed will support a man in whom they have confidence.

The show at Noroton should bring in a considerable sum for the three churches of the town, for the benefit of which the affair is given. They are the Noroton Presbyterian Church, St. Luke's Episcopal Church and St. John's Roman Catholic Church. Dog owners in that neighborhood have rallied to the support of the show. William Ziegler, Jr., will show his pointers; E. H. Delaford, Orville Harold, Mrs. Cyril Crimmins and J. H. Lapham, their German shepherds; J. Robinson Beard, his cockers; and Mrs. Roy A. Rainey and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Newton, their wire-haired fox terriers.

Another show giving money this year is the Brooklyn Fair on October 4, 5, 6 and 7, at Brooklyn, Mass. Although this would appear to be a four-day show,

WESTCHESTER DOG SHOW SETS RECORD

Entry of 439 Judged in Rye Event Takes Lead for Season.
Season's List of 2:10 Performers Now Numbers
Forty-six.

Favored with an entry of 439 dogs the Westchester Kennel Club of Rye took the lead yesterday for outdoor shows held hereabouts this year. The exhibition was for the benefit of the United Hospital at Port Chester.
It was an all breed show and the shepherds had the largest entry. The winning dog was Soba Kennel's Bendix V. Eschenbaum. He is a splendid dog when in form, but was a bit out of sorts yesterday. Many thought that Dolt von Josselle, owned by P. A. E. Widener, Philadelphia, should have won. The winning bitch was Joselle Kennel's Helga v. Riedelberg.

Pomeranian was a high class collection and Mrs. Reginald May's Fox Hill Wee Flyaway won. This, a handsome black, three and a half pounds, with an abundance of coat, also won the special for the best pom in the show. To accomplish this feat he had to beat one of the very best pomeranians in Mrs. A. W. Rose's Palm Mall Black-acre, who has just been imported and was a big winner in the French Bulldog and the Meland's Fidele scored in American bred, limit, and winners class. The contest for the best special in the show, the very typical Frenchman, was won by Champion La France Model II, owned by Fred Potoff. The special for the best opposite sex went to Mrs. Mabel J. Riddell with Champion Hawley, owned by Mrs. Mabel J. Riddell.

The whippet races were special features and two events were contested. The Westchester Stakes proved to be a corker, for it was the best race starting with the old favorite, Gilligan's Tommy, the winner by inches. The Blithers Stakes was won by Prince, a black dog owned by D. R. Ward. Monday the dogs will be shown at Noroton, Conn. awards in the winners' classes follow:

Whippets—Harry Eaton Damon, Jr.'s, Champion Freeman Galloping Dominoes, first; M. J. Munn's Wanda Knockout, second; Bitches—W. F. Lively's Fire Fly, first; Harry Eaton Damon, Jr.'s, second; Best—Harry Eaton Damon, Jr.'s, Champion Freeman Galloping Dominoes.
Chow Chow—Dogs—C. E. Libby's Tang Hau Ki II, first; Mr. and Mrs. T. Gillen's Baby Wong Lee, second; Bitches—Miss Claire Knapp's Champion Chop Suey of Chairow, first; Mrs. C. E. Libby's Tang Hau Ki II, second.
Bulldogs—Dogs—Mrs. J. Doherty's Surlington Surber, first; Mrs. J. Doherty's Surlington Surber, second; Bitches—Mrs. J. Doherty's Surlington Surber, first; Mrs. J. Doherty's Surlington Surber, second.
Bull Terriers—Dogs—J. H. Lyons's Nick War Mask, second; Best—J. H. Lyons's Nick War Mask, second; Bitches—J. H. Lyons's Nick War Mask, second; Best—J. H. Lyons's Nick War Mask, second.

M. B. Newcomb's Seventh avenue stable, at the entrance to Central Park, is beginning to reflect the approach of the autumn riding season. Mr. Newcomb has a large number of well trained horses on hand.
W. H. Kaufman & Sons, 193 Division street, are showing one of the largest stocks of saddles, bridles and riding equipment in the trade. They report a good business.
Godfrey Freese, of Westbury, L. I., has several promising saddle horses and hunters ready to show at Mineola, Piping Rock and Smithtown.

George Watson's recent importation of hunters and saddle horses is taking many prospective buyers out to Teaneck, N. J., these days.
The judging is limited so that only a few breeds will be there on any one day. It will not be necessary to keep the dogs at the fair for four days. Although the show will be a public attraction, care is being taken so that there will be no uncomfortable crowding of the dogs.

The death of J. Herbert Winslow has been announced, bringing news of a sudden loss to the dog world. Mr. Winslow was a patron of all branches of sport, giving a good share of his time to dogs. At one time he had the finest kennel in the country. He died at Saratoga Lake, where he had been for his health. Mr. Winslow was not only an extensive exhibitor of dogs but was a great judge, having a fine eye for all the shooting breeds.

Chief Protector James M. Stratton has decided, and the Commission agrees with him, that the bag limit law must be interpreted as meaning a calendar year and that a deer hunter, next winter, will be entitled to get a buck during the season.
